HUGE US FOODS TRUCK ARRIVES AT FOOD BANK

There's nothing like a small town. With ongoing National Guard food delivery delays, Mayor Escapule reached out to long-time resident and friend Freddie Martinez, who works for the large US Foods corporation (and yes, that's our Nightlife Freddie, hopefully back soon at the Oriental! See <https://www.facebook.com/nightlife.band.az/>).

Martinez immediately arranged for Tombstone to buy food at below-wholesale pricing. "We're not making a dime on this," he said. "And there's a lot more we will be able to do to help Tombstone in the days ahead."

Only minutes after the huge US Foods truck pulled in, driver Paulie Blancarte pulled the piled-high pallet of food down the ramp, delivering it to the very happy Food Bank volunteers. They were almost out of food, but now are back in business. Mayor Dusty: "A big, big thank you to Freddie and Paulie. Talk about a just-in-time delivery!"

Stay safe, Dusty

Mayor Dustin L. Escapule, 4/3/2020.
